They say you should never go to bed angry in a relationship with your spouse, but you really should never go to bed without prayer in a relationship with God. I enjoyed reading this inspiring and uplifting book that seems like it was designed to give you strength and the nourishment of grace before you go to sleep. Great read.

Prayer is a privilege and at the end of the day we should be honored to be able to go before the maker of the universe with the challenges and successes of the day. Doing this enables us to find peace from the anxieties of life. Evening prayers can be filled with words of thanksgiving and adoration; it is indeed a blessing to take time to talk to God and thank him. The author provides wonderful advice for the use of this prayer book which contains supporting scriptures and gives a basic construction for a prayer. There are prayers full of supplication, praise and gratitude which are suitable for all occasions and for all types of people.

I don't pray regularly. But I do pray when I find the time because I can feel it helps me spiritually and unburdens my mind. Mostly what I do is pray when I find the time, which is usually sometime close to bed. The prayers here have a simple pattern that focuses on different parts – first of all is giving thanks to God, then supplication, confession and adoration. This really made me feel personally connected to the words I said instead of just repeating words. What came in most handy for me were the directions on how to use the prayer book.

This book offered up prayers seeking peace from the Almighty. We can cry out to him in times of trouble, praise him for who he is and all the blessings he has lavished upon us- these all are the great blessing of prayer. Everyday we have to face unique challenges and opportunities and the key is to come to the Lord in prayer. This book enriched with seventy eight heartfelt prayers of peace, reflection, praise, and dedication inspire me, uplift me as well as support me draw nearer to the Almighty.

I read the other book last week with the morning prayers, I liked that book and I like this as well. As I wrote then, I'm no believer in "God", But I think that it's just so beautiful with prayers, you don't have to believe in God to pray. Praying is Comfort and Hope and so much more. Prayer fifty-eight is my favorite in this book. I can really recommend this book for pretty much everyone!

We want to turn to God at the end of each day, but often don't find the words to express our deepest feelings and longing. This collection of prayers is one of the few daily devotionals especially intended for use in the evening. This is the best book of prayers I have ever read. The prayers are practical and they helped me articulate what is in my heart. The prayers are very specific and challenging. They caused me to examine myself, to confessions which I might otherwise have glided over, to challenge myself in the service of God. I am confident that this book will be a blessing to anyone who uses it.

This book is well written and this book fulfills my expectation. I was searching some powerful evening papers and in this circumstance my grandfather suggested me about his book. Inside of this book I have found seventy plus evening prayers. Inside of this book I have found some Bible verses also and I really loved them. It is true that we can these evening prayers can improve our daily life if we incorporate these in our life. The author of this book describes every prayerâ€™s summary clearly and I am glad to read this book. If you want to learn some powerful evening prayers, then this book is perfect for you.
