Truce: The Historic Neighbor From Hell (A Neighbor From Hell Series Book 4)

Synopsis

Elizabeth knows what's expected of her, perfection. She's the daughter of an Earl and expected to marry well, say and do the right things with a smile on her face when inside she's dying for a chance to escape. Thanks to an inheritance her godmother left her years ago, her chance will come with her next birthday. Her hopes of escape abruptly end when Robert, her childhood nemesis that she hasn't seen in over fourteen years, comes back into her life and does everything he can to drive her out of her mind even as he steals her heart. He hated her. At least, he tried to hate her, but it was so damn difficult to hate someone that he couldn't live without. He tried to ignore her, tried to focus on anything but her, but nothing worked. Somehow she made her way into his heart and started to make him want things that he never thought possible, made him smile and laugh even while she drove him out of his mind and started a legacy by turning him into a Bradford. Author's Note: This is first and foremost a historical novel. This novel is written differently than the other Neighbor from Hell books. Truce is about a man who takes everything too damn seriously and can't let go of the past until the woman that he would love to hate comes back into his life and brings out the Bradford within.

Truce is a tantalizing tale that takes you back in time to when it all began...Robert Bradford loved to torment his neighbor Elizabeth Stanton when they were children. He was only a few years older than Elizabeth and really enjoyed picking on her. He cut her hair, called her names, would sneak up on her and scare her, and most of all loved to harrass her about her crush on his brother. One day she had enough, and revealed a dirty little secret about Robert to all of his friends that very quickly he was unable to deny. From that point on her avoided her like the plague.He was able to avoid her for over a decade. Now his parents were dragging him and his brother to the Stanton Estate for a party. No matter what he would not go near Elizabeth Stanton."Oh, do stop pouting, Robert," his mother said teasingly. He glared at her from across the carriage. "I am not pouting," he said firmly. "I just don't understand why...no, let me fix that, how you managed to talk me into this."A lot can change in fourteen years...Elizabeth can't stand to listen to one more man try to court her with their only thought being how much her dowry would be worth to them. She does not want to be the host of another party, but she promised her father that she would not sabotage her her chances to find an acceptable suitor. So, she takes the first chance she can get to sneak out of the party to the orangery. At least she has Shakespeare to read to take her mind off things.Robert decides he needs a breath of fresh air and notices a beautiful orangery not too far away with the lights on. Surely he can escape for a few hours in there and perhaps take a nap. Once inside Robert hears a woman's laughter and it is intoxicating to him.
